106 ACRE MAIN CAMPUS

Men at Montevallo

- This booklet is designed to portray, informally, the way men students study, work, live and play at Alabama College. It is impossible to show all buildings or all activities of the separate schools and departments of the College. Pictured on these pages is a sample cross section of campus life and activity.

- Early in 1956 the Legislature of Alabama made Alabama College a coeducational College of Liberal Arts. For sixty years prior to the passage of this bill Alabama College served Alabama and the South as the State College for Women. In September of 1956 the first class of men students enrolled at Alabama College. Since 1956 Alabama College has served as one of the outstanding coeducational liberal arts colleges of the South.

- Alabama College's 106 acre main campus is considered to be one of the beauty spots of the South. Spacious lawns, stately trees and an unusual number of flowers and shrubs contribute to the natural attractiveness of the campus. More than 30 buildings are included in the physical facilities of the College. The unmatched recreational facilities of Alabama College include a nine hole golf course, 28 acre lake, battery of twelve tennis courts and complete facilities for nearly all team and individual sports.

Campus

- ★ Alabama College students find campus life geared to their own interests. Democracy among students is apparent in everyday relationships in residence halls, classrooms, laboratories and athletic fields. Guided by the interest and advice of deans and counselors, students govern themselves.
- ★ A healthy academic atmosphere is enhanced by a well balanced program of convocations, concerts and lectures featuring some of the nation's outstanding artists, musicians and scholars. A complete recreational program plus intramural athletics and extra-curricular activities make campus life complete.

Completely air-conditioned, the College's ultra-modern men's residence hall houses 175 men students. Opened in May, 1957, the three story brick dormitory is located across the mall from the College's main campus. A snack bar, hobby shop, reading room and recreation room are located on the lower level of this building.

Living

DISTINGUISHED FACULTY

- Alabama College's faculty members are scholars in their fields, dedicated to the pleasant task of imparting knowledge and understanding. Because of relatively small classes, faculty members know their students as individual persons, not as grades or numbers. Not only do faculty members teach facts and subject matter, but they strive to make each student want to find out more for himself—to arouse and stimulate academic curiosity.
- The majority of Alabama College's distinguished faculty have been awarded the doctorate degree.

EXCELLENT FACILITIES

- Well equipped laboratories, large classrooms and studios, a library with more than 70,000 volumes plus generous outdoor equipment provide complete facilities for all classes.

FORMAL DANCES

LIVING—Alabama College's dormitories provide healthful and comfortable living conditions in an atmosphere of culture and friendliness. The school's student government association provides opportunities for leadership and experience in the democratic way of life.

DRESS—Simplicity combined with neatness and good taste prevails at Alabama College. Formal occasions call for dark suits or tuxedos.

HEALTH—A thorough provision for student health is afforded by a resident physician and two nurses. Peterson Hall, the College infirmary, is equipped for all but major surgery.

RELIGIOUS LIFE—Montevallo's six churches, Baptist, Catholic, Methodist, Episcopal, Church of Christ, and Presbyterian, welcome students to join in their religious life. Other organized church groups offer congenial fellowship and opportunities for training in religious leadership.
